Glioma: A Review of the Staging, Classification, and Prognosis of Primary Brain Tumors. There are approximately 20,000-30,000 new cases of primary brain tumors diagnosed each year in the United States. Due to their location within the central nervous system, surgical resection remains the cornerstone of therapy. Determination of postoperative tumor recurrence and risk of disease-related mortality are critical for neuro-oncologists and neurosurgeons in the planning of treatment regimens. It is in this context that the World Health Organization (WHO) classification of tumor of the CNS, the latest iteration of which was published in 2016, has been implemented and developed. This review will discuss the histopathology, molecular genetics, classification, and treatment of gliomas in the context of WHO guidelines.

Republican Missouri state Senate candidate Sarah Steelman was quick to make the connection between taxes and the Benghazi attacks. "I did lose sleep over Benghazi. Not because of an email I got as a senator," the former Senate candidate said to about 100 supporters. "I did lose sleep because I did lose children over Benghazi." Jack Graham, R-Mo., a local business owner and banker. "They're raising over $1 million, they have a think tank and everything else that's been revealed in the last couple of months about who funds who," she said. For Democrats in Missouri, the race for the U.S. Senate seat currently held by Sen. Roy Blunt, R-Mo., is between former Missouri Gov. Jay Nixon and state Treasurer Clint Zweifel. The seat will be vacant after Blunt's term ends in January 2015. "He is probably the only person alive who can say that he thinks that his endorsement is an 'upside.' I think that is a sad commentary, and this man is probably happiest
